Issues Proclamation Taking Over Control of All Wire Systems

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, July 23.—President Wilson today issued a proclamation taking over control of the telegraph and telephone cables and radio system for the duration of the war and will be effective next July 31. The president also by proclamation assumed control of the Cape Cod line connecting Cape Cod and Buzzard Bay, and directed the railroad administration to operate it.

Power to Burleson.

Authority to operate the wire system is vested in the post master general. Complete detail it is announced would be made later. The president's proclamation provides the post master general, if he so elects, may administer the lines to the owned managers, board of directors or receiver. It provides further, unless the post master directs otherwise, the present management shall continue in control and operation of the wire system is placed under direction of the post master general. Regular dividends previously declared and interest in maturing obligation shall continue to be paid until the post master general directs otherwise. And subject to his approval, the company may arrange renewal and extension of their company's obligations. The post master general in his discretion may thereafter relinquish in whole or part to the owner any telegraph or telephone system of which he has assumed control.

Postmaster General Burleson in a statement explaining his plan in operating the wire system, he said there would be no change affecting the press wire service except to improve it wherever possible.

little danger has resulted. Throughout the day, the guns of the allied forces have bombarded the enemy with excellent results according to aerial lookouts. Over all the territory taken the damage wrought by American and French guns show the position formerly held by the Germans, suffered much more than the allied line, notwithstanding the volume of fire.

London, July 23.—French the advances stated stormed the heights north of Couleuse at three yesterday afternoon. They also are holding the bend in the neighborhood of Sayon as far as Treliou. These two towns are just to the north of the Marne to the east of Jaulgoine taken by the American troops at latest advance was still in the hands of the enemy.

Cross Marne.

The French crossed the Marne and entered Binson just to the east of Reut. The enemy counter attacked heavily from the direction of Vandiers, but these onslaughts were beaten off. The French have captured Outchy le Chateau. Well informed opinion in London regards the situation on the battle front as going well for the allies. It is not expected however, the advance will be so rapid as previous. The Germans having now had plenty of time to get their reserves into position. They are also displaying a disposition to fight for all they are worth.

Difficulty Great.

In their fighting along the Marne the French are reported to be experiencing great difficulty in making a passage of the river at some points. They are stubbornly opposed by the German infantry, well supported by artillery and machine guns. The Germans are stiffening their resistance between the Oise and Aisne rivers and connecting in a solid front.

Taken Prisoners.

London.—The taking of 400 prisoners by the Americans in this advance is reported.

Losses Heavy.

Paris.—According to a review of the military situation in L'Homme Libre, the newspaper owned by Premier Clemenceau, the German losses since July 21 are approaching one million men.

No Radical Changes.

With American army in Alsace-Marne from July 17-18, a marked change in the situation along the battle front. The reports seem to be that today would be another of attack and counter attack with not more than slight changes in the line. The troops of General Pershing and General Petain are holding their own, every inch of ground they have gained since the counter攻 began on Thursday last.

The Franco-American forces north of Reut, now are holding Epiegs a sturdy village and bit of territory northeast of Mont St. Per. To the east the enemy is continuing counter attacks unsuccessful. Along the greater part of the front artillery fire was the chief activity although at places brilliant infantry operations are taking place while machine gun nests make every open field a potential trap.

Many Prisoners.

The number of prisoners has been increased by thousands and a veritable mountain of capture and abandoned material is in possession of the allies. Many of the guns taken have been blown up or damaged by the enemy. Here he abandons them. The British effort along the line near Rheims has been rewarded by a bag of prisoners and machine guns.

American Sector.

German resistance resulted in harder fighting today. The operations were robbed of some of their spectacular features by the determination of the enemy not to be crowded into a retreat.

South of Soissons the allied troops maintained all positions as they were Sunday night except where they have been improved slightly. The allied positions however, are in an apparent danger from attack by German reserves.

In the area north of Chateau Thierry the enemy is reported by air observers to be still moving northward but slowly. The fighting rear guard action all the while. The French and Americans are keeping close to the heels of the retiring Germans and taking every opportunity to move forward. Army headquarters moved ahead bit by bit as the line advanced.

Aeroplanes Busy.

Enemy airplanes have been active on observation work but the fire by the German artillery in attempt to reach the allied rear indicated the Germans failed to spot the allied position. Many shells have dropped along the Marne at regular intervals and

Defense Council Head Accused of Graft in Raincoat Production

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

New York, July 23.—Agencies of the Council of National Defense were involved, today, in the nationwide conspiracy of alleged bribery and graft in the manufacture of soldiers' rain coats, through the arrest of Harry E. Luger, a member of the Defense Council of the committee supervising the rain coat production. He is accused of attempting to bribe a government instructor.

The department of Justice agent also took into custody Charles L. Fuller, chief government inspector for the New York manufacturing district, and it was announced he had confessed full detail of the working of an extensive bribery system in connection with the manufacture of rain coats and other soldiers' clothing.

and northeast of Chateau Thierry, still on and are now on a line well to the east of La Croix and Grise, and northeast of Mont St. Per. Two towns in this area have been captured by the Americans. The Germans in this area will have to retire more to the north, as their positions are without adequate means of supply and support and the slightest would render the front untenable.

Ineffectual Efforts. Ineffectual attempts by the enemy to drive the allied forces back on the eastern leg of the salient have resulted in fierce fighting in Coulon and Reul wood, where the enemy blows are the heaviest, the allies having suffered all attacks. North of Coulon wood British troops in an advance have taken 200 prisoners and 40 machine guns. It is reported an 400 from London, that General Gouraud has driven the enemy back beyond the old front line between the Oise and Marne, a front of twelve miles. Coupled with French gains just east of Rheims, last week, this report, if true, means the French now hold the same front line as before the German offensive east and west of Rheims.

German troops within the salient of the Oise, not only have lost all supply lines, but are being subjected to a very great bombardment by British and French airmen. In the Vesle and Ardey valley, French bombers have dropped fifty tons of bombs. All the important railroad and conveyance centers, likewise have been liberally deluged from the air, and several fires

German Reports. Berlin reports of the fighting, say on Sunday, all allied efforts were repulsed, and the Germans gained complete success in the battle. Admission is made however, that the allies have advanced to the new German line north and northeast of Chateau Thierry. Divisions are counter to the north to the aid of the German Crown Prince, who have been counter balanced by the arrival on the allied front of British divisions. When it became known some days ago the Germans were sending troops from the British front toward the salient an equal number of British divisions were sent south of General Foch and have been making good gains in the fighting southwest of Rheims. ### Wisconsin is Ready for the Impossibilities Says General Crowder

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison, Wis., July 23.—Agencies with which Wisconsin has met the war demands of the government is well indicated in letters which Governor Emanuel L. Philipp, former provost marshal of the United States. In one message to General Crowder, says, "I have come to expect the impossible."

Not only have Wisconsin's draft contingents been ready at all times, but the state has done remarkable well in meeting special calls and demands for mechanics and artisans whose services have been needed by the government.

Until the government has come to call upon Wisconsin for almost every when there is reason for haste to meet an emergency.

Wisconsin was among the initial states to understand the work of a central purpose of supply and in a letter on this question from Washington, it was stated that a memorandum would be issued to other states, entitled "How Wisconsin Does It."

One of the reasons for the efficiency which has been shown, Wisconsin is meeting the war emergency is the personal attention which Governor Philipp has given to the war work of the state and this fact is also acknowledged in a letter to the governor from the war department officials in which the following remark is included: "This office has received a favorable report of the personal interest taken by you in the work and desires to have you for this further evidence of your efficient administration of this selective service act in the state of Wisconsin."

The capabilities of the men whom Governor Philipp has selected to aid him in looking after the war work of this state is shown by the fact that Major George Kirk, who has had charge of the draft law was recently requested to leave the Wisconsin work and take a position directly under General Crowder in the war department at Washington.

Wisconsin is also being chosen by the federal officials as one of the first states in which the labor conservation program is to be carried out. The reason for this is the splendid organization which the state has for work along such a program through the Wisconsin Industrial Commission, and this commission has been placed in charge of the arrangements for the work which will be an eventual result in massing the Wisconsin labor for the industries essential to the war that the greatest possible efficiency will be obtained in these industries and that the labor employed in them shall not only at all times be sufficient, but of the most competent character that can be obtained.

The work on this labor conservation program has already been begun and the organization which is to look after the introduction of the plan selected.

COAL EXPERTS SAY
COAL WILL BE SCARCE

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Philadelphia, July 23.—As coal experts predict the anthracite coal is going to be scarce this winter, the inventive genius in the anthracite industry has been hunting for new sources of supply. Operators are working abandoned mines, installing new devices and putting in electric power.

Heavy explosions were caused in factories in the two last named places.

The barrier pillar between the New Boston and Mill Creek collieries containing 500,000 tons of anthracite is to be mined. Bancroft, Mountain south of Ashland, to be stripped of its surface coal veins for a stretch of two miles.

3 FREE ATTRACTIONS

Gymnasts, Acrobats and Comedians to Put On Performances Every Day At The Fair

Cash prizes totaling $6,378.25 are offered in the various departments and divisions of the Janesville Big Fair and Live Stock Show, held here this year, August 13-16. Combined with $6,000 in race purses, the grand total of prizes offered is $12,378.25.

The premium list for Janesville's fifth annual fair has been printed in shows a wide variety of prizes in twelve different departments. The cattle department, as usual, leads the others in the total amount of prizes offered, the total being $2,191, of which $1,240 is for beef breeds and $951 for dairy breeds. The horse department follows with a total of $1,196 offered in prizes.

Three big free attractions have already been confirmed for by the Fair management and will put on performances every day of the fair. The three days—sensational novelty gymnasts, will present two acts; executing difficult comedy ground acrobatics and flying ring novelty tents. Gus Henderson, called the "Funny Babe" on the circuit, and will appear in a comedy, including rope act. In their appearance at western fairs, the Levant Tots, sensational ground gymnasts, offer two big feature acts with a class combination of acrobatic skill blended with irresistible comedy.

Plans are going forward rapidly in making the "wartime exhibits" in each department, and anything yet seen at Janesville's Big Fair. How the war and the movement for conservation have touched the exhibits is seen in many of the premiums offered. In the Culinary department all entries are to conform to Food Administration rules and baked goods are to contain at least one-half substitute to certain wheat. Breads, cakes and pies are the premium list. Canned fruits and vegetables are also offered attractive prizes. The legions of knitters will find abundant opportunity to display their dexterity with the needles in the knitting class of the Domestic department. Soldiers' sweaters, helmets, socks and trench mittens are the other articles.

The School Exhibits department promises to be one of the largest and best ever shown. Cash prizes amounting to $554.75 are offered in this department. The domestic economy premium list offers numerous prizes for baked goods made from time receipts. The absence of prizes offered for candy and other sweets is to be noted. Instead, are to be found premiums listed for the best loaf of war bread, corn meal doughnuts, barley cookies, and eggless, sugarless and butterless and wheatless cake. Students can also earn a number of prizes for Red Cross work.

The fair association announces that there will be no complimentary tickets issued. This system is unique, not having been tolerated in the past, not because it has been necessary, but because it has usually been customary.

other mercantile business.

The Rock County Milk Producers' Association have a splendid program for Milk Producers' Day, on Thursday August 15th.

Following the dairy cow demonstration, Mr. W. J. Kittle, Chicago, who is secretary of the Milk Producers' Association, will address the Milk Producers and friends. ## FILIPINO CHILDREN OVERCROWD SCHOOLS

GEORGE MAGEE WRITES FROM PHILIPPINE ISLANDS TELLING OF EDUCATIONAL SITUATION
THERE.

REFUSE ADMITTANCE

Students From Provinces Barred From Manila Schools Owing to Unproected Attendance.

George Magee, formerly of the Philippine educational staff, writes from Manila. In telling of the seriousness of the educational situation caused by lack of schools, his letter which follows throughout follows:

Manila, R. I.—Probably the greatest work which the Americans have done for the Philippines has been through the bureau of education. Teachers arrived soon after the American soldiers and the good accomplished is now bearing fruit. There is a real shortage of even teachers this year especially as it has been difficult to secure recruits in the United States on account of war conditions. But the Philippino normal school and the University of the Philippines are turning out high grade Philippino teachers who are taking their places in the schools throughout the Islands.

The school year has just opened, and the situation with regard to the schools in Manila is worthy of comment. The children are swarming to schools by the thousands, the average being larger than ever before.

The building accommodations have proved entirely inadequate, and though the school officials began looking for possible buildings which might be converted into classrooms, far back as six months ago, they have been unable to find room.

Fortunately there have been large numbers of pupils who have sought enrollment who have been turned away temporarily until room can be found. The authorities have also been forced to refuse admittance to the Manila schools to students from the provinces in the vicinity of Manila which has been a disappointment to hundreds of boys and girls who have been seeking the capital in search of better instruction. In the high school especially the overcrowding is acute and the teaching force is not sufficient. There are something like 2,000 pupils enrolled with only one building to accommodate them.

A situation unique in Philippine educational history occurred a few days ago at one of the intermediate schools when a hundred of more parents accompanied their children to school, and demanded of the teachers that their children be enrolled. They refused to be put off longer with the excuse for not enrolling them that there was no room. They demanded that the city find room and find it at once, but it is difficult to find suitable buildings which can be rented for school purposes, and persons who own property which might be used are taking advantage of the situation by demanding exorbitant rents. It is hard to place the blame on the government. The school authorities have been asked for funds for more buildings, but even when the money has been appropriated by the city board, it has been impossible to construct them for want of materials. But before the school year has progressed much farther it is expected that the problem will be solved in some way.

The only way to walk through the doors of the originally native section of Manila to see why it is easily possible for the schools to become overcrowded. There are children everywhere. Families of eight and nine are the rule. There is a great field for infant welfare work and the city is doing something along that line with public-spirited visiting nurses, health inspection, and similar activities. Free milk is also furnished for babies whose families are unable to provide it.

But it is necessary to go deeper into the situation, since it is the mode of habit of living that needs elevation and that can come only through education and a revision of the wage scale, which makes a complicated economic problem.

older. But they are happy, apparently, and the climate is kindly disposed to them. The cold weather and they are accustomed to heat. They suffer mainly from epidemics of various diseases. Recently there has been a serious smallpox epidemic which has taxed the facilities of the bureau of health. Scores of children have died, many cases being due to the blinder by ignorant parents who sought to avoid quarantine in the isolated hospital where all cases of contagious disease are treated. The health authorities have been conducting a systematic vaccination campaign and have had more than a hundred inspectors employed for the last three months. Conditions are now much improved.

But the majority of these children no longer attend the schools. It is in the schools that they are getting the taste of American ideals and American principles. Only English is spoken in the schools, so that the younger generation of Filipinos is quickly speaking. Many of them do not understand Spanish, being acquainted only with their native dialect and English.

These brown little youngsters make a fine showing when they turn out in parades on public occasions. They delight in marching and in wearing costumes. They will take part in the Fourth of July celebration in large chorus of several thousand will sing patriotic songs. They are being taught this year something of the world war and its importance to them. The bureau of education is conducting the Junior Red Cross activities in every school in the islands. Teachers receive literature on the Red Cross and instructions how to plan work. It is expected that 10,000 Philippino children will be enrolled and many of them, in the higher grades, will do a certain amount of plain sewing.

There are not enough American teachers for the primary and intermediate grades, most of which are taught by Philippinos with some school education. High school have a number of American teachers and practically all of the division superintendents are Americans.

It is not an exaggeration to say that the hope of the Philippines is in the public schools for they are slowly but surely applying American thought and methods to local conditions. They are turning out hundreds of ambitious young people equipped not only in the academic branches, but along industrial lines, the Philippines being ahead of many parts of the United States in the emphasis which is placed on industrial education and preparation for trades.

It would be false to let it be understood that there are no educational facilities in the Philippines before the Americans came, because the Spanish schools, most of them conducted by church societies or friars' orders, were doing much for the better classes. In fact the University of Santo Tomas was founded long before Harvard and has a high standing. But the schools and colleges did not reach the masses. The church schools, many of them still continue, and are accomplishing an important work.

Sturtevant of Wausau, president of the Wisconsin Daily League, will be chairman of the convention.

Hit by Stray Bullet. Marinette—J. Shelt, aged fifty, a Thunder Mountain farmer, lies in St. Joseph's hospital in serious condition as the result of being hit by a stray bullet. He lost the sight of one eye, pierced by a bullet which lodged in his cheek.

It is reported the stray shot was fired by a camper in the vicinity of Shelt's farm, who had been firing at a target.

NACH BERLIN.

When the Germans advanced on Verdun during the early days of the war, the slogan of the crown prince army of invaders was "Nach Verdun." That slogan failed even to "knock at the door of Verdun" despite all their efforts. They came other advances and other retreats and the battle of the Somme and the battle of the Marne and now again a second battle of the Marne with a new toe in opposition.

A toe that was launched at and scraped in the German Imperial court and made a joke of by the German military circles, "only now they are launching out of the other side of their mouths and wondering what next those 'big devils from the Americas' are going to do." They won't fight fair. They insist on fighting after surrendered and often times take back some of the men who thought they had captured them as prisoners to the American lines.

Now the new one is "Nach Berlin," apparently some of the Germans are calling in their haste to get out of danger, while it is certain the advancing Franco-American forces find it very suitable to their purposes. As the days go on the cry will sound louder and louder and when the enemy is behind the Rhine it will sound better than ever.

This American army of ours is composed of fighting men from top to bottom. A son of an ex-president loses his life in an air raid on a German position. Dies fighting for the cause of democracy. Yet the Princes of the Prussian house of despots are safe from harm beyond the shot torn battle lines. There's not a sight given though the cry is "Nach Berlin."

The ruler of all Russia, one of the most powerful monarchs on the face of the earth, but a few short months ago is reported killed by some subversive council of the revolutionary government, because it was alleged, they found he was plotting to regain his freedom and restore Russia to the fighting lines. The great Russian empire is no more, torn up into fragments we learn that the Japanese and American troops plan to invade it from the Pacific coast and cross over Siberia. Who would have thought this possible a few months ago.

Yet the cry "Nach Berlin" will ring from the Volga and the Rhine valley simultaneously and as a result we will find the German people will force the Imperial government to make a peace with the invaders so that they may at least retain their identity and not be swallowed up in the chaos that is sweeping over all Europe in the wake of the world's scourge that came forth from Berlin.

A DEFINITE PRETENSE.

It is a matter of little moment whether Germany, or what some people differentiate as the German government, counted at or made responsible the murder of the German envoy in Moscow. The result is, or far-reaching financial and political consequence. It gives the German militarist party a valid excuse for the occupation of Moscow, the ancient Russian capital. It is in fact, in line with two other incidents of the same kind, both used to the same advantage, says an exchange.

It need hardly be said that these were the murder of the Austrian Grand Duke and the murder of the German ambassador at Pekin, which involved intervention in China. Following Kaiser Wilhelm's instructions the Germans treated the innocent and unwary Chinese in such manner that the American and British officers in that expedition declined to associate with the German officers; while the American general protested with frankness and force.

"Here, then, is exactly the opening which Germany likes and the protests and apologies of Lenin and Trotzky are beside the mark. They have played the German game throughout. They have created the fanatic and unscrupulous, in an essentially altruistic and even child-like people. A some inscrutable product of their teachings committed this murder, he was giving the German Kaiser an excuse for the treaty of Frost-Litvok, and for its contemptuous disregard. This he deservedly needed as a counter in the European diplomatic game.

"The murder of an ambassador, by all the international rules which Germany seems fit to observe, has been taken to warrant occupation and the severest redress. It need hardly be said that the heartening and encouragement of those anti-German Russians in Siberia should receive the immediate attention of the president and our state department. We may readily cast away our German cultured hopes to Japan, and give these loyal Russians the backing necessary to restore Russian democratic liberty."

MILITARY AGE.

There is no question in the minds of authorities that before congress has taken the final adjournment that the age for military service will have been increased from eighteen to forty-five. This will include many young and older men than now are in the draft and give Uncle Sam plenty of opportunity to pick the best of American manhood for the stupendous work that has been undertaken across the seas.

As now composed the Wisconsin State Guard, the Minnesota National Guard and the Illinois Home Guard regiments are made up largely of men of these ages. In fact at the recent encampment at Camp Douglas, Governor Philipp expressed surprise at seeing so many young men in the ranks and wondered why. The new order when passed will affect all of this class and the training they have received will be a most valuable asset.

The same is true of military train-

SENATOR CHAMBERLAIN. As chairman of the senate committee on military affairs, Senator Chamberlain of Oregon is one of the leading figures in the wartime congress. He is known from one end of the country to the other, and just as well known is the fact that his task in the senate has been no slight undertaking.

"I would rather have taken a regiment than a battle," said a familiar friend the other day, "than to have Senator Chamberlain's job."

If the chairman of military affairs would choose the regiment rather than his present, he has made no sign. And he has been untiring and constant as though he were in regimental quarters.

There have been times recently when it looked as though the strength of the man must fail, and he has had to take a quiet treatment. But his returns with only half a chance, and his interest has never waned.

The career of Senator Chamberlain has been brilliant, and in many respects unique. It would seem that he is gifted in accomplishing not only big things, but things that seem impossible.

Once upon a time he had a Republican legislature when he was governor of Oregon and of course the legislature did not care a whole lot about the governor. But that difference did not interfere with the governor's influence and his ability to get the return in legislation that he wanted from the assembly, who experienced a change of heart.

When he decided to come to the United States senate there happened to be another Republican legislature in force. It is not for the Republican legislature to send a Democrat to the United States senate, but when the former governor of Oregon announced his intentions about the chairmanship the unusual came to pass.

Senator Chamberlain, with all his energies devoted to the military policy of the nation, has a serene and kindly outlook upon life. He is one of the most genial of men, with a keen sense of humor, a man of ideals and a healthy appetite for reform.

That's his room—the second story. And that service star's for him, Ah, this block has claimed a glory. That in future days was his. Just a year ago he walked here, Went to work, the way we do: Just a year ago he talked here. I'm talking now to you.

Never dreamed I'd brag so loudly. Never thought I'd be so glad To tell every stranger proudly I'm associated with his dad. I'm shouting that I know him. And I knew him as a kid. On his wagon used to tow him. Yes, you bet your life I did.

Now our heads are high with glory. And the street has come to fame. And the papers print the story. Of the boy of humble name. Now we come and go to labor. Just like soldiers over and over. Since the boy who was our neighbor Has received the croix de guerre.

Janesville and northern Rock county will bid farewell Thursday morning to the largest contingent of men in selective service men to leave the city under any draft. Men in the past and present are now being made to give the 143 boys who leave for Camp Grant a send-off that they will always remember. Edgerton is going to send her band down for the occasion and together with the Bower City band and Company G of the Wisconsin State Guard will act as an escort to the home men in the parade from the post office to the St. Paul depot.

The two bands will assemble on Milwaukee street in front of the armory at ten o'clock and after playing several pieces will proceed to the post office with Company G. Here the members of the draft increment will fall in line in a column of squads. The Janesville boys will form one section, the Edgerton boys another, while the others from other parts of the district will make up the third division. Leaving the post office the long parade will proceed to Milwaukee street and west to Academy and north on Academy to the St. Paul station. The select men are scheduled to leave on a special train at eleven o'clock with twenty-five men from LeFayette county who will arrive in the city at ten o'clock. At Beloit a contingent of 219 men will board the train and the 387 selects will arrive at Camp Grant at 12:40 p. m.

The occasion is going to be a most impressive one and it is to be hoped that the people turn out in large numbers to witness an enthusiastic send-off. The boys from Edgerton will be cheered by the largest delegation of friends and patriotic citizens ever furnished by a city of that size and Janesville people must be present to do honor to the local boys and to those of the entire district.

Dr. P. L. Ferguson and S. C. Bostwick of the National Service Welfare Association are in charge of parade arrangements while Mayor Leary of Edgerton is chairman of the committee in that city. He has arranged for approximately one hundred automobiles to bring the 143 selected people to Janesville to take the parade from the depot to the depot. The Edgerton Cornet band will take part in the parade while a guard composed of Spanish War Veterans, who in turn will be supported by a Guard of Honor of Civil War veterans will also escort the boys.

Mayor Leary is urging those who have relatives, farmers as well as city boys, that they write to the boys to bring those to Janesville who have no means of transportation, but who desire to demonstrate to the boys that the united community is with them. ## THE NEW PATIENT

But Sally's eyes kept straying across the ward to the bed of the newcomer whose face was hidden under its "first aid" bandages. Though she went about her work with her usual diligence, she could not keep her thoughts in check.

"Just because I can't see his face!" she told herself. "Just because I dreamt of some one whose face was hidden. Oh, what's the matter with me, anyhow? Dr. Will must be right; my nerves are going."

The moments she had wished with her other "children" Sally went back to his cot. Roger, and I came quiet.

"I'm afraid I shouldn't have brought him to you; you've too many bad ones on your hands already," he said.

"Sally said nothing, scarcely knowing he spoke, so intent was she upon the still figure. Roger looked troubled. "I say, he went on, "I'd better have him transferred to No. 4."

"No, no," whispered Sally, grasping his arm. "He can't be moved. I couldn't have him hurt any more. He must stay here, right here!"

Roger started in surprise at her emphasis.

"Is anything—he isn't any one you know—anything, is he?" he stammered.

"Why, no, indeed!" returned Sally, coming back to poise. How could he be? But here's Doc Roll; maybe he's learned something about him."

"Not much," said the doctor.

"Only that he's been a corps of engineers, and last night to stem the enemy's onslaught. I think they were all Americans."

Sally started then forced herself to calmness. But there was now fight in her eyes.

"Anyhow," Dr. Will went on, "he leaped into a plane for some necessary reconnoitring, the gas tank was exploded by a shot, and he fell in the midst of heavy firing."

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young boy of seventeen years of age. I have been going with a young girl who is four years my senior. I knew she was engaged at the time, but I still went on with her, and she was very nice to me, and I love her very dearly. I find that I cannot live without her. She is my first sweetheart. Do you think I should give for her the so-called puppy love? Do you think I should give her up entirely? What shall I do? JOHNNY.

I think you have a case of puppy love. Give her up entirely and go with girls your own age, if you go with girls at all for a while. It will not be long before you are as deeply in love with some one else.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man of twenty. There is a girl on the same street in which I live whom I am sure would speak to me if I would first speak. We have been going this way for a week, for some time. We have never been introduced. Do you suppose it would not be nice for me to speak to her first and without first being introduced? I know she would speak to me; but of course she might be considered rude in most cases, but in this case do you think it is all right? THANK YOU.

Speak to the girl. Since you are relatives it will be all right. It is natural that the girl would not like to speak to you first.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I went with a young man about a year ago. He was very nice to me, but I thought at the time he was not good for me. About two months ago I changed my mind. He has told my sister that he cares very much for me, but that I do not care for him.

He is now in the navy. When he left we shook hands and said goodbye. This was the last time we had spoken to each other for a year.

As I turned him down, do you think it is my place to find his address and write? I love him, but I wouldn't show it. ANXIOUS.

I would not write first if I were you. If he loves you he will not give you up so easily.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Do you think a girl should drive her fellow's car when he asks her to? CARRIE.

It is all right for a girl to drive a man's car when he asks her, if it belongs to him, but if it belongs to his master she should not.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a wife and mother of a two year old girl, and I love my husband, but at times I do not. He seems to think only of himself. He gets mad at any little thing. He is always so cross at home, but when we go anywhere it is "dearie" and "honey." At home he does not seem to care for me at all and he does not say anything except to baby. My husband still loves me, but in the way I do him. We are not jealous of each other, but somehow we cannot get along. Shall I go away for a while?

Has a wife a right to be half boss or should she do everything her husband says?

Shall I ask him what he wants me to do and do it, or shall I do what I think is right for a wife to do? I always try to do right by him.

AN UNHAPPY WIFE.

If you can go away for a while do so. So many times a few weeks apart will make a husband and wife much happier together when they are reunited. You have got into the habit of being displeased with each other and a change may show you both how much you mean to each other.

A wife should try to please her husband when she can, if your husband expresses his opinion about the way a certain thing should be done, and should be done that way, follow his advice. Agree with him that it is a good idea. Do not consider which is boss. Before you were married you probably thought all your husband's ideas perfectly sound and good and even asked his advice occasionally. Treat him now as you did then and you will find that you are happier together.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Is it proper for a young lady to wear a service pin for the young man she has been engaged to for two years and who is now doing duty overseas?

THANK YOU.

INDUSTRIAL HYGIENE (7) LIGHT ON THE WORK

The first principle in proper lighting is that the light should fall upon the work from above or one side, but it should not fall upon the worker's eyes.

For instance, in reading at night the light should not be directly within the vision but the page should be illuminated by light falling from above over either shoulder. In writing the light should come over the left shoulder for right-handed persons. Very often the lamp stands so near the table that it is difficult to avoid the direct glare in the eyes unless the back is turned to the light. If the lamp stands higher this direct glare is more readily avoided. And if an inverted globe of translucent material is used the light is done away with altogether and a softer, more diffused and better light for reading obtained. This approaches in efficiency and beauty the ideal invisible lighting, that is, that reflected by ceiling or walls from a concealed source.

Green shades for lamps or green eyeshades make a health and extravagant investment to avoid glare which could be prevented by intelligent arrangement of lights, and with greater economy too. It looks ridiculous to a worker facing a glaring lamp at night, but it is not compulsory, and a young woman may use her discretion.

Engaged: A private soldier is treated the same as civilian when introducing him to a young lady. Always present the gentleman to the lady. When other gentlemen are present, the soldier is introduced to them afterwards.

Wouldn't you go take an hours rest? Beautiful Lady," said Roger gently, "or run round the yard a time or two. You're wearing yourself to frazzle."

"No, no," smiled Sally. "But if you'll give me half an hour's idling right here, I've something to mind." She fished out a scrap of sewing from her apron pocket, drew up a chair near the cot and sat down. Something in her manner made Roger respect her well.

"All right, Little Mother," he whispered. "The go, I went on, "if you want me to, I'll go around the inclosure till I'm called to the lines again."

Sally sat for a moment, stitching a torn cuff. But her eyes kept straying to the swathed face so near her. Did he move then? Was that a moan? Surely it was. Sally bent swiftly over him, began to kiss his forehead from side to side. His eyes could see between the strands of gauze that they were open now—stared feverishly. He lifted one swathed hand, trying to tear off the bandages that oppressed him. Sally took his wrist gently.

Mustn't I do what I said as to a child? She strained to free his hand. Here I'll loosen them for you." Deeply she widened the rifts about his eyes and lips, looked swiftly—and started back, pressing both hands to her mouth. Then it was—it actually was—Stephen Terrance!
